Tax Reduction Plan May Be Modified as a Result

Washington, Nov. 27.—Secretary Mellon's plan for tax reduction was given partial indorsement by Senator Watson of Indiana, a member of the finance committee and acknowledged leader of the regular Republican group in the senate.

Senator Watson said he would support the Mellon plan on general terms, but if modification in the tax reduction program are necessary in order to take care of the adjusted compenhaving such modifications made. He

Senator Watson declared that as a bill out of the committee unless there the prospect that the bill will be buffeted around the senate and prevented from passage until late in the summer of next year, he will insist upon having it held in the committee.

Senator Robison said that along with a judicious revision of income tax rates there should be a general asking the directors of finance to furrevision of tariff rates.

REPORT SAYS VERA CRUZ ATTACKED

Mexico City, Nov. 27.-Disorder has broken out on the lower east coast of Mexico and agrarians, uniformed as federal troops, have entered the port of Vera Cruz and taken charge, according to a report here. The report declares that terror reigns throughout the city's streets as a result of killing and looting by the agrarians who, after gaining possession of the town, shouted "Long live Calles, the next president." One detachment of the agrarian mob is said to have arrested prominent citizens, placed them in a wooden shack and set fire to it, the victims managing to escape by digging under the floor before being consumed by the flames.

PROGRESSIVE GROUPS IN

CONGRESS PLAN CHANGE

Washington, Nov. 27-Out of a tically continuous on both Senate and House sides of the capitol there emerged today a tentative draft of a legislative program which the militant little progressive group in the new Congress will endeavor to put through in the coming session.

Foremost among the tentative agenda are proposed changes in the system of taxation with far-reaching benefits for wage earners and an almost complete revision of the Esch-Cummins act with a reduction in freight rates.

The program will not assume final form until after Senator LaFollette, Republican, of Wisconsin, leader of the group, recovers from his present illness. Other members, are meeting daily to discuss the proposed legislative program.

The tentative program includes: 1-Revision of the Esch-Cummins act with probate restoration of rate fixing powers to the Interstate Commerce Commission and some action, tending to force a reduction in freight rates;

2-Revision of income tax laws by reducing taxes on small incomes and increasing the taxes on large incomes; increases on inheritance taxes and re-enactment of an excess

SUSPECTS

New York, Nov. 27 .- After putting Morris Barlow Diamond through an exhaustive examination, the police declared that Diamond, his brother Joseph and a number of their associates in the Diamond Box company were nothing more than a "corporation for the promotion of thievery, dope smuggling, rum running and sundry other crimes."

And it was this corporation, the police charge, that plotted and executed the murder of the two West End bank messengers here on Nov.

Joseph Diamond has been put under arrest and William Fried, an emwhereas formerly it had been located ploye of the box company, detained as a material witness. All deny knowledge of the bank messengers' murder. But police declare that finger prints found on the Cadillac car in which the slayers made their escape and finger prints taken of Morris Diamond when he was arrested once for gun toting, were identical. For Morris Diamond, before his arrest in Cleveland, had figured several times in police records.

The finger prints in fact were the clues which started Detectives Donahue and Martin on Morris Diamond's trail. This led them first to Philadelphia, where Diamond has entertained chorus girls on a lavish scale. From there the trail took them into the state of Ohio and to the Statler hotel in Cleveland.

SAYS GOOLIDGE CAN GIVE CRAIG PARDON

Washington, Nov. 27 .- The depart ment of justice handed President Coolidge a formal ruling declaring that the president has the power to pardon Comptroller Charles L. Craig of New York, under sentence to serve 60 days in jail for contempt of court.

The opinion was written by Solicitor General Beck, who was called into a conference by President Coolidge just before Senator Copeland and Representative La Guardia put before him a formal request to extend executive clemency to the New York official. There is a distinction between a "request" and an "application," it was pointed out.

One point raised by the president on which he asked the opinion is whether he can pardon a person who has not requested clemency. While it is understood that Mr. Beck found that the president had wide latitude and could extend clemency if he so desired, the president does not wish to interfere unless Craig, or some one authorized to act for him, files a authorized to act for him, files a formal application.

Anthracite Business Scored -Would Have Pennsylvania "Clean Up"

Harrisburg, Pa., Nov. 27 .- After three hours of criticism of the anthracite industry and the failure of Pennsylvania to adopt measures to control prices, the conference of governors, called by Governor Pinchot, adjourned until Dec. 13 to study suggestions presented during the session. Two governors, George Silzer of New Jersey and J. A. O. Preus of Minnesota, with representatives of nine other states, took part in a severe arraignment of Pennsylvania's attitude in the anthracite problem. A suggestion for a "compact of states" by Governor Pinchot as a method to get united action to prevent excition in the sale of anthracite was opposed by a number of representatives, and resolutions presented by Governor Silzer endorsing repeal of the anthracite coal tax and other laws which he declared obnoxious, failed of endorsement when the representatives of governors not present refused to vote until the suggestions made at the conference could be laid before their executives. Governor Pinchot asked the cooperation of the other states. He said he did not see why Pennsylvania, which consumes one-tenth of the anthracite mined within its borders, should attempt to regulate the industry for the other nine-tenths of consumers of other states.

Governor Preus insisted that the anthracite industry should be declared a public business and regulated by Pennsylvania laws. He cited cases of control of elevators in Minnesota, North Dakota and other western states. He said regulation was an obligation on the people of Pennsylvania to take care of the rest of the anthracite using public.

Governor Silzer said he was opposed to the compact of states unless it were empowered to "come into Pennsylvania and clean up." He styled the tax an "indefensible levy," and insisted that the tax levies a toll of from 50 cents to $1 a ton instead of only a cent on a dollar, as Governor Pinchot stated.

"We, (the government) promised to return the roads at the end of the war and make up any loss. It was written in the 1920 act to return the reads and put them back in as good condition as they were before the war. Some roads would have to be improved and the only way was to borrow money in the way of issuing bends. But the roads that were not profitable could not borrow money. The question was how to improve them so that they could borrow money. I am opposed to a guaranteed income-it is economically unsound, but unless there was some assurance that the rate making power-the Interstate Commerce Commission, had the right to say that the roads had the power to make a certain rate to make a profit, then their securities wouldn't sell. The upshot was that since the government took them over and used the roads and was under written obligation to return them in as good condition as formerly, that the government had the obligation to make it possible for the roads to borrow money to make their necessary in:provements. For that reason section 15-A of the transportation act was included, giving the Interstate Commerce Commission power to make a reasonable return on their investment. Five and one-half per cent was considered a reasonable return, and above this one-half was to go to the government and one-half to the weak roads. In spite of what some people say there never was a guaranteed income. The roads never made the five and one-half per cent and the government never made up the difference, which France should be permanently in the is proof there was no guarantee. There is now a question wether 15-A should stay in the law. The profitable roads are not in favor of being taxed to pay If France stays in the Ruhr Valley, for the less profitable roads. There is a demand now, especially from the times are rather serious. Nine counagricultural interests, for a lesser fneight rate. Some roads, many of them especially in agricultural territory, want the high rate. They couldn't lower the rate unless the increased volume of business would make up the difference and that is always a question. There is now a plan prposed to permit the roads to combine so that one road, doing a greater business and therefore more profitable can assist a road doing less business and therefore less profitable. But the large road won't look on that plan with much favor.

"I don't think I would vote to compc: the roads to combine. I would vote to permit the roads to combine so that the larger roads could assist the smaller. The proposal will be popgressmen come from places where there are short and less profitable roads. There is going to be a move to unify the roads into one system and operate it as one by the United States government. I am averse to that proposal. As long as it is possible for the roads to be operated as private enterprises, it should be done at all hazards. It is true the government did not have a very good show operating the roads during the war. But it is a problem I hate to see come up. The candidacies of 20 prospective managers have been filed with the City Commission. Reports that William R. Hopkins, Cleveland attorney, would be given the job, were met with the statement that the commission has far from reached a decision.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS OF THE MONROE DOCTRINE

Within a few days the centennial of the Monroe Doctrine will be celebrated. The notice served by James Monroe upon the European powers to abandon all thought of territorial aggression in the western hemisphere was an essential complement of the Declaration of Independence-

The Declaration of Independence cut the people of the thirteen colonies loose from the European political system. That European system, inspired by age old national, racial and religious rivalries and hatreds, eventuated periodically in senseless bloody wars. The Ameriacn colonists had been involved in one war, the French and Indian, because of an European quarrel and they did not care again to be compelled to use their blood and treasure in settling the disputes of European powers.

But if the European system were to be transplanted to the new world through seizure of territory in this hemisphere America would still be menaced by every war originating in European causes. Hence it was essential that European nations should be warned to stay on their own side of the Atlantic.

The Monroe Doctrine is not regarded with favor by the persistent European propagandits who look upon this nation as a European province, and who do not feel that America is "doing her duty to the world" unless she mixes in every trans-Atlantic controversy. Armistice Day was used by the sob-sisters of this persuasion throughout the country to loose maudlin utterances about the "selfishness" of America's policy of "isolation." That policy commended itself to Washington and to all his successors in the Presidency down to Woodrow Wilson because of considerations quite as potent today in their argument for American Independence of European politics as when Washington inquired: "Why quit our own to stand supon foreign ground?"

MR. WILSON'S ARMISTICE DAY ATTACK ON THE AMERICAN PEOPLE.

Former President Woodrow Wilson seized upon Armistice Day as a fit occasion for scoring his country and his countrymen. This he did in a speech manifestly intended to glorify himself and his part in the winning of the World War and the losing of the peace which perpetuated rather than concluded that war.

American advocates of internationalism believe unfriendly misrepresentation of the American people and government, malicious impugning of the motives and belittling of the purposes of those who hold the welfare of this country above every other political consideration, to be an essential feature of their propaganda. This is illustrated in almost every speech in which the United States is urged to undertake European involvement. We are told that to refuse to sacrifice the security and solvency of this country in behalf of European ideals and ambitions is selfish, sordid nationalism. We are constantly reminded that we have to do our duty toward a continent in behalf of which we made enormous sacrifices of blood and treasure only to have the ideals for which our soldiers fought betrayed, and our intended service to civilization rewarded by the basest ingratitude and a general return on the European continent to the age-old wrongs and abuses we were told the World War would forever

Former President Wilson's address, broadcasted on the eve of Armistite Day, caps the climax of misrepresentation of the American people, who, in tre great and solemn referendum of November, 1920, put the stamp of disapproval upon the efforts of Mr. Wilson and his associates to sacrifice the interests and ideals of America to the ambitions and interests of Europe. The speech is one that will be quoted throughout Europe by unfriendly critics of the United States who have long been seeking to If more than a chance for success you establish the belief throughout the world that after saving civilization in Europe by armed intervention during the World War it is the duty of the American government, having sought no indemnities or territorial acquisitions as joint victors in the struggle, to perpetually feed, finance and fight the wars of Europe no matter at what sacrifice of Americanc men and money.

The conduct of the American people since the World War, Mr. Wilson declares "must always be a source of deep mortification to us." It has been "deeply ignoble because manifestly dishonorable." We are guilty of "sullen and selfish isolation." By an interpolation in his prepared address the attitude of the United States in refusing to accept the Versailles treaty and covenant of the League of Nations was described as "cowardly."

The charge of "selfishiness" levelled against the American people in this connection is as untrue as the charge of cowardice. The American people entered the World War for no sefish purpose, and they sought at the end of the war no national advantage. In this course America stood absolutely alone among the victorious powers. The American people did not "abandon" their associates in the World War. They did not promice that America's entry into the World War meant permanent involvement in European politics, and the assumption that any such obligation was involved is the sheerest nonsense. The American people did not ask for an inch of soil or a dollar of indemnity at the end of the World War; there was consequently no obligation to remain in Europe to divide the spoils or to assist the victorious powers in collecting their indemnities or guaranteeing their huge territorial acqusitions .- National Republican-

U. S. HAS ON BOOKS 7 BILLION DOLLARS NOW UNCOLLECTABLE

Washington, Nov. 27-Uncle Sam as a creditor, has on his books about seven billion dollars, money borrowed from the American people and loaned to Europe, which the Treasury designates as "uncollectable for an indefinite period."

This substantially will be the report to Congress next week by the American Debt Founding Commis-

Preliminary to reporting to Congress the status of obligations due the United States on account of war loans made to European countries, the American commission has just concluded a fresh survey of Europe's "ability to pay."

The result of this is disturbing to the American government.

The attitude of France is regarded by higher officials as "disquieting." The American commission for the present has deferred resorting to a policy of prodding France to liquidate her debt which now totals approximately $,4000,000,000. The administration takes the view that to bring pressure upon France and other larger debtors would be a possible expedient, but a doubtful one for all practical purposes, as the French government has neither gold nor dollars with which to settle. The best that France has given the American commission is a, promise, hinged upon what officials team purely visionary expectation of what France will force Germany to pay in war damages

The man who manipulates prices is the first type of illegitimate speculator, but his day is passing.

The second is the man who acts on baseless tips. He is an to do as much harm by mistake as the manipulator does purposely. He buys on tips alone, making an artificial demand which, if not offset by an artifical supply, will prevent the market from functioning properly as a measure of supply and demand. Most of us speculate on tips or hunches at one time or another and do not stop to think that we are speculating illegitimately. Yet the effect is just as bad as if we had deliberately manipulated the market. (Copyribht, 1923, Associated Edi-women of all types may now choose height. The short woman need no tion instead of a luxury, because it makes her look so "bundly." Instead she may choose one of those new slim-silhonetted three-quarter length coats. In Hudson seal or black caracul, some of the three-quarter length models are sister to a pencil in slimness.

For the really petite figure, the short jaquette type is still the most becoming. Unfortunately this is not practical for wearing over an evening dress. For daytime, however, it is splendid. The sketch shows a model in civet cat, which is extremely decorative. A well known movie actress is the owner of the threequarter chinchilla coat which is also shown above, and the full length illustrates how effectively mink may be used.

THREE HUNDRED YEARS MAKE A DIFFERENCE

The first Thanksgiving was the appreciation of the Pilgrim Fathers for their first harvest in their new-found home of liberty; it wasn't much to boast of as crops go nowadays, but they were thankful.

When we think of the privations those early pioneers endured for an ideal, we see how thankful we can be for our comfortable homes, bountiful crops, general prosperity; it would be a long list if we named everything.

You're probably thankful for a lot of things. We're thankful for your patronage during the past year; it shows you appreciated our efforts to serve you; it gives us confidence to continue our value-giving.

Exclusive But Not Expensive.

SEVER ATHLETIC RELATIONS WITH LONDON SCHOOLS

Acting on instructions from Board of Education, John R. Beacham, business manager of the city schools, has written London High School, authorities severing athletic relations between teams of Xenia Central High and that school.

The action followed trouble which started at the recent Xenia Central-London High football game, when the new Cox Memorial Athletic Field was dedicated and which ended in a scoreless tie. Severing of relations between the schools included cancellation of the basketball game scheduled to be played next February and a football game scheduled for next fall.

"Unbecoming attitude" on the part of London players and supporters at the recent game, resulted in the action, it is understood. London school authorities and supporters on the sidelines gre wabusive in their criticism of the officiating, although local authorities had engaged Dave Reese. and "Dutch" Thiele, two highly rated Ohio Conference officials, to handle the game.

London partisans claimed the officials favored Xenia in the matter of penalties and staged a personal attack on Referee Reese at the end of the first half!

Records of the game show that although officials were accused of favoring Xenia, that actually seven penalities were called on Xenia for a total of 55 yards while London was penalized six times for 47 yards. Each team accepted two 15-yard penalities, and one of London's penalties, was a two-yard penalty for fourth time out. Records also show Xenia made 12 first downs to London's six and gained 185 yards to London's 107, giving the Xenia team a technical victory.

When Wilmington High defeated London High at London last Friday, Wilmington was handicapped by six 15-yard penalties.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG It's Easy-If You Know Dr.

Edwards' Olive Tablets The secret of keeping young is to feel oung-to do this you must watch your liver and bowels-there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

PROGRESSIVE GROUPS IN CONGRESS PLAN CHANGE IN SYSTEM OF TAXATION and House sides of the capitol there for president. emerged today a tentative draft of a legislative program which the militant little progressive group in the new Congress will endeavor to put through in the coming session. Foremost among the tentative agenda are proposed changes in the system of taxation with far-reaching benefits for wage earners and an almost complete revision of the Esch-Cummins act with a reduction in freight rates.

The program will not assume final form until after Senator LaFollette. Republican, of Wisconsin, leader of the group, recovers from his present illness. Other members, are meeting daily to discuss the proposed legislative program.

The tentative program includes: 1-Revision of the Esch-Cummins act with probate restoration of rate fixing powers to the Interstate Commerce Commission and some action, tending to force a reduction in freight rates;

2-Revision of income tax laws by reducing taxes on small incomes and increasing the taxes on large incomes; increases on inheritance taxes and re-enactment of an excess profits tax.

SUSPECTS

New York, Nov. 27 .- After putting Morris Barlow Diamond through an exhaustive examination, the police declared that Diamond, his brother Joseph and a number of their associates in the Diamond Box company were nothing more than a "corporation for the promotion of thievery, dope smuggling, rum running and sundry other crimes."

And it was this corporation, the police charge, that plotted and executed the murder of the two West End bank messengers here on Nov. 14 last.

Joseph Diamond has been put under arrest and William Fried, an emwhereas formerly it had been located ploye of the box company, detained as a material witness. All deny knowledge of the bank messengers' murder. But police declare that finger prints found on the Cadillac car in which the slavers made their escape and finger prints taken of Morris Diamond when he was arrested once for gun toting, were identical. For Morris Diamond, before his arprofessional men in the village of rest in Cleveland, had figured several times in police records.

The finger prints in fact were the clues which started Detectives Donahue and Martin on Morris Diamond's trail. This led them first to Philadelphia, where Diamond has entertained chorus girls on a lavish scale. From there the trail took them into the state of Ohio and to the Statler hotel in Cleveland.

Anthracite Business Scored -Would Have Pennsylvania "Clean Up"

Harrisburg, Pa., Nov. 27.-After three hours of criticism of the anthracite industry and the failure of Pennsylvania to adopt measures to control prices, the conference of governors, called by Governor Pinchot, adjourned until Dec. 13 to study suggestions presented during the session.

Two governors, George Silzer of New Jersey and J. A. O. Preus of Minnesota, with representatives of nine other states, took part in a severe arraignment of Pennsylvania's attitude in the anthracite problem. A suggestion for a "compact of states" by Governor Pinchot as a method to get united action to prevent excition in the sale of anthracite was opposed by a number of representatives, and resolutions presented by Governor Silzer endorsing repeal of the anthracite coal tax and other laws which he declared obnoxious, failed of endorsement when the representatives of governors not present refused to vote until the suggestions made at the conference could be laid before their executives. Governor Pinchot asked the cooperation of the other states. He said he did not see why Pennsylvania. which consumes one-tenth of the anthracite mined within its borders. should attempt to regulate the industry for the other nine-tenths of consumers of other states.

Governor Preus insisted that the anthracite industry should be declared a public business and regulated by Pennsylvania laws. He cited cases of control of elevators in Minnesota, North Dakota and other western states. He said regulation was an obligation on the people of Pennsylvania to take care of the rest of the anthracite using public.

Governor Silzer said he was opposed to the compact of states unless it were empowered to "come into Pennsylvania and clean up." He styled the tax an "indefensible levy," and insisted that the tax levies a toll of from 50 cents to $1 a ton instead of only a cent on a dollar, as Governor Pinchot stated.

States represented were Ohio, Vermont. Connecticut. Massachusetts. New Jersey, Minnesota, Maryland, Rhode Island, Virginia, Michigan and New York

ONE HUNDRED YEARS OF THE MONROE DOCTRINE

Within a few days the centennial of the Monroe Doctrine will be celebrated. The notice served by James Monroe upon the European powers to abandon all thought of territorial aggression in the western hemisphere was an essential complement of the Declaration of Independence-

The Declaration of Independence cut the people of the thirteen colonies loose from the European political system. That European system, inspired by age old national, racial and religious rivalries and hatreds, eventuated periodically in senseless bloody wars. The Ameriacn colonists had been involved in one war, the French and Indian, because of an European quarrel and they did not care again to be compelled to use their blood and treasure in settling the disputes of European powers.

But if the European system were to be transplanted to the new world through seizure of territory in this hemisphere America would still be menaced by every war originating in European causes. Hence it was essential that European nations should be warned to stay on their own side of the Atlantic.

The Monroe Doctrine is not regarded with favor by the persistent European propagand its who look upon this nation as a European province, and who do not feel that America is "doing her duty to the world" unless she mixes in every trans-Atlantic controversy. Armistice Day was used by the sob-sisters of this persuasion throughout the country to loose maudlin utterances about the "selfishness" of America's policy of "isolation." That policy commended itself to Washington and to all his successors in the Presidency down to Woodrow Wilson because of considerations quite as potent today in their argument for American Independence of European politics as when Washington inquired: "Why quit our own to stand supon foreign ground?"

MR. WILSON'S ARMISTICE DAY ATTACK ON THE AMERICAN PEOPLE.

Former President Woodrow Wilson seized upon Armistice Day as a fit occasion for scoring his country and his countrymen. This he did in a speech manifestly intended to glorify himself and his part in the winning of the World War and the losing of the peace which perpetuated rather than concluded

American advocates of internationalism believe unfriendly misrepresentation of the American people and government, malicious impugning of the motives and belittling of the purposes of those who hold the welfare of this country above every other political consideration, to be an essential feature of their propaganda. This is illustrated in almost every speech in which the United States is urged to undertake European involvement. We are told that to refuse to sacrifice the security and solvency of this country in behalf of European ideals and ambitions is selfish, sordid nationalism. We are constantly reminded that we have to do our duty toward a continent in behalf of which we made enormous sacrifices of blood and treasure only to have the ideals for which our soldiers fought betrayed, and our intended service to civilization rewarded by the basest ingratitude and a general return on the European continent to the age-old wrongs and abuses we were told the World War would forever

Former President Wilson's address, broadcasted on the eve of Armistite Day, caps the climax of misrepresentation of the American people, who, in tre great and solemn referendum of November, 1920, put the stamp of disapproval upon the efforts of Mr. Wilson and his associates to sacrifice the interests and ideals of America to the ambitions and interests of Europe. The speech is one that will be quoted throughout Europe by unfriendly critics of the United States who have long been seeking to establish the belief throughout the world that after saving civilization in Europe by armed intervention during the World War it is the duty of the American government, having sought no indemnities or territorial acquisitions as joint victors in the struggle, to perpetually feed, finance and fight the wars of Europe no matter at what sacrifice of Americanc men and money.

The conduct of the American people since the World War, Mr. Wilson declares "must always be a source of deep mortification to us." It has been "deeply ignoble because manifestly dishonorable." We are guilty of "sullen and selfish isolation." By an interpolation in his prepared address the attitude of the United States in refusing to accept the Versailles treaty and covenant of the League of Nations was described as "cowardly."

The charge of "selfishiness" levelled against the American people in this connection is as untrue as the charge of cowardice. The American people entered the World War for no sefish purpose, and they sought at the end of the war no national advantage. In this course America stood absolutely alone among the victorious powers. The American people did not "abandon" their associates in the World War. They did not promice that America's entry into the World War meant permanent involvement in European politics, and the assumption that any such obligation was involved is the sheerest nonsense. The American people did not ask for an inch of soil or a dollar of indemnity at the end of the World War; there was consequently no obligation to remain in Europe to divide the spoils or to assist the victorious powers in collecting their indemnities or guaranteeing their hure territorial acqusitions.-National Republican-

Preliminary to reporting to Congress the status of obligations due the United States on account of war loans made to European countries, the American commission has just concluded a fresh survey of Europe's "ability to pay."

The result of this is disturbing to the American government.

The attitude of France is regarded by higher officials as "disquieting." The American commission for the present has deferred resorting to a policy of prodding France to liquidate her debt which now totals approximately $,4000,000,000. administration takes the view that to bring pressure upon France and other larger debtors would be a possible expedient, but a doubtful one for all practical purposes, as French government has neither gold nor dollars with which to set-The best that France has given the American commission is a promise, hinged upon what officials team purely visionary expectation of what France will force Germany to pay in war damages.

There are two distinct types of illegitimate. Do you kow them?

(2) THE MANIPULATOR

The man who manipulates prices is the first type of illegitimate speculator, but his day is passing.

The second is the man who acts on baseless tips. He is an to do as much harm by mistake as the manipulator does purposely. He buys on tips alone, making an artificial demand which, if not offset by an artifical supply, will prevent the market from functioning properly as a measure of supply and demand. Most of us speculate on tips or hunches at one time or another and do not stop to think that we are speculating illegitimately. Yet the effect is just as bad as if we had deliberately manipulated the market. (Copyribht, 1923, Associated Edi

BY LENORE

As fashion has decreed three different lengths in fur coats this year, women of all types may now choose height. The short woman need no longer look upon the warmth and comfort of a fur coat as an infliction instead of a luxury, because it makes her look so "bundly." Instead she may choose one of those new slim-silhouetted three-quarter length coats. In Hudson seal or black caracul, some of the three-quarter length models are sister to a pencil in

For the really petite figure, the short jaquette type is still the most becoming. Unfortunately this is not practical for wearing over an evening dress. For daytime, however, it is splendid. The sketch shows a model in civet cat, which is extremely decorative. A well known movie actress is the owner of the threequarter chinchilla coat which is also shown above, and the full length wrap illustrates how effectively mink may be used.

THREE HUNDRED YEARS MAKE A DIFFERENCE

The first Thanksgiving was the appreciation of the Pilgrim Fathers for their first harvest in their new-found home of liberty; it wasn't much to boast of as crops go nowadays, but they were thankful.

When we think of the privations those early pioneers endured for an ideal, we see how thankful we can be for our comfortable homes, bountiful crops, general prosperity; it would be a long list if we named everything.

You're probably thankful for a lot of things. We're thankful for your patronage during the past year: it shows you appreciated our efforts to serve you; it gives us confidence to continue our value-giving.

Exclusive But Not Expensive.

SEVER ATHLETIC RELATIONS WITH

Acting on instructions from Board tute at Neil Park, Columbus. of Education, John R. Beacham, business manager of the city schools, has written London High School, au- the interest the contest is drawing, thorities severing athletic relations the contest was booked in the capital, between teams of Xenia Central High where adherets of the grid game are and that school.

The action followed trouble which started at the recent Xenia Central-London High football game, when the new Cox Memorial Athletic Field was dedicated and which ended in a scoreless tie. Severing of relations between the schools included cancellation of the basketball game scheduled to be played next February and a football game scheduled for next fall.

"Unbecoming attitude" on the part of London players and supporters at the recent game, resulted in the action, it is understood. London school authorities and supporters on the sidelines gre wabusive in their criticism of the officiating, although local authorities had engaged Dave Reese, and "Dutch" Thiele, two highly rated Ohio Conference officials, to handle

London partisans claimed the officials favored Xenia in the matter of penalties and staged a personal attack on Referee Reese at the end of the first half/

Records of the game show that although officials were accused of favoring Xenia, that actually seven penalities were called on Xenia for a total of 55 yards while London was penalized six times for 47 yards. Each team accepted two 15-yard penalities, and one of London's penalties, was a two-yard penalty for fourth time out. Records also show Xenia made 12 first downs to London's six and gained 185 yards to London's 107, giving the Xenia team a technical victory.

When Wilmington High defeated London High at London last Friday, Wilmington was handicapped by six 15-yard penalties.
